By going with three panels for a total of 48 volts in series, that made the voltage loss less than 3% for the length of the run. Others are not that concerned about my 3% loss number for my panels, and find it better to add an extra panel or two to compensate. I then came up with two other arrays with two separate charge controllers.

However, if it's a very sunny day, the solar panel will often generate more than its rating: a 12v for example, can generate between 16v and 20v. So if you're using a 12v solar panel to charge a 12v car battery, and the solar panel generates more than 12v, there is a danger of overcharging.
